News Alert - issue April 2009

NEW JABLOTRON WEBSITE

Click on www.jablotron.com to see more and bookmark it!

We are pleased to announce the launch of our new website which has been completely re-designed for your benefit.

We have improved the appearance and navigation on the site with six big clickable panels on the home page so that your favourite section is only one click away. There are also logically organized menus to save time for busy people.

Each product has a strategically-placed reminder picture and an initial short summary with key words in bold to minimize time wasted on unnecessary reading and to quickly direct you to the product of interest to you. Clicking on the product name then gives you deeper details to help the decision making process along smoothly. Many product pages also feature handy links to manuals, software, relevant websites etc.

The News facility has been enhanced with General News and Product News just clicks away, including a News Alert archive for your convenience. News headings also appear on the home page to help you get a quick update on the current news topics. The extensive download section contains all the software you should need, together with PDF technical manuals and also many catalogues and presentations for effective marketing in various languages.

Other news:

JA-82K now sold without a backup battery

Customers wanting a JA-82K control panel with a back-up battery will have to order the backup battery separately in future.

Easter holiday

Jablotron will be closed for business during Easter Monday which falls on 13th April this year. We wish you a pleasant Easter Season.
